WHAT IS A CAROTID ULTRASOUND

- Carotid ultrasound (also called sonography) is the most common test for diagnosing carotid artery disease. It's a painless, harmless test that uses sound waves to create pictures of the insides of your carotid arteries.
- This test can show whether plaque has narrowed your carotid arteries and how narrow they are.

PREPARING FOR THE TEST

- There is no need for any special preparation.
- You may eat and go about your normal activities unless otherwise informed.
- Do continue to take all your medications prescribed by your doctor and follow your doctor's orders as usual.
- If you have small children, please arrange for their care as you will be unable to tend to them during your test.

THE TEST

- The entire test takes less than one hour. The carotid ultrasound will be performed by a sonographer, a specially trained ultrasound technologist. You'll lie on an examination table and the sonographer will obtain ultrasound pictures of your carotid arteries using a small hand-held transducer and water-soluble gel.

WHEN WILL I RECEIVE THE RESULTS

Your test will be reviewed and interpreted by a cardiologist. A report will be provided to the physician who ordered the test. They should contact you with your results within 48 hours.
